Sit still Mr. Gladstone we will not detain you long.

If you think for a moment that you are right on the Irish question why don't you settle it. You have force money and power at your back. If the Irish are fighting a battle which is akin to that waged by the colonies against your fathers, you had as well let them go. When you quit temporizing and the Irish quit talking we shall have a settlement of this question. You look to us, like a man who wanted to do something and lacked

If that is not true, then you know you are wrong and lack the bravery to cknowledge it.

Since you imprisoned Parnell, the idea which he represented has traversed the world. You had better let the man out, and shut up the thought. That's what troubles you.

The Court is assured that the order asked for will only be availed of so far as is necessary to insure fair trial. Having failed to obtain additional council Scoville has undertaken the defense and the responsibility devolves entirely upon cept on the question of insanity. The question of malpractice has only been held in abeyance so that the leading counsel, who may come in, need not be hampered in organizing the defense According to my own views it is now abandoned so far as I have any connection with the case." There seems to be some difference of opinion here among the lawyers as to whether or not it will be necessary for Guiteau to be present in Court during the araloury Examination of Partie Charged with Killing S. C. Scoville.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S SESSION. Witness Parrott continuing-There were two kinds of bullets in Scoville's pistol. The one found on the floor might have come from Scoville's pistol-same size, etc. Loaded Wheeler's pistol with English sartridges because they explode easier. [Witness wa ibre of different cartridges and bullets in the different exhibits.] The Sunderland bullet is the same class as the Allen builet. The Allen bullet was calibre 45. It could not have been fired from the Scoville pistol.

In answer to Lindsay-The Allen bullet was discharged from a weapon; it hit something soft. [Witness shown Balch hat with holes.] If the cartridge had very bad powder it might have passed through this hat and fallen to the ground. A dirty pistol might stop the ball. I cleaned Wheeler's pistol. Can't say that and No. 8] were, or were not fired

In answer to Rankin-Examining Balch's hat.] This hole looks like one made by a bullet, I see lead marks. The bullet entered at the tell what size bullet made the hole.

In answer to Deal-The indentation in two cartridges of Scoville's pistol could have been made by the hammer. The bullets F and G might have it is possible.

In answer to Lindsay-A good English cartridge from a British Bull Dog in that room would have thrown a ball through both walls.

In answer to Kittrell-The Allen and Sunderland bullets were fired through a pistol; they were not forced through.

Mr. Deal, for the defense, moved for a discharge of his clients, Fowler, Moore and Cogan, on the ground that the evidence for the last few days has shown that none of them fired the shot which killed Scoville, but that it probably came from the pistol of another party (meaning McMechan).

Mr. Sunderland was there also I saw Mr. Wheeler motion to Mr. Fowler to sit down. There was no disposition of any one to move. I saw Mr. McMechan carry his right hand to his right hip and said the word "well." Mr. McMechan had been sitting down and was then rising. Mr. Fowler placed his hand on Mr. Mc-Mechan then drew his pistol. I did not see Mr. Fowler jerk Mr. McMechan into the middle of the floor furiously. Mr. Wheeler rose up at the same time and said, "hold on." I passed over to the right hand of McMechan as he rose up. Fowler had his hands on Mr. McMechan, urging him along; that brought the two in front of me. I put my left hand on McMechan and McMechan had his pistol in his hand H. L. I believed that he was the only man that was villainous enough to draw his pistol on such an occasion. Mr. Wheeler got up and drew his pistol, and used the expression "Hold on." I saw Mr. Fowler's back towards me and to the left of Mr. Fowler stood Mr. Coffin with his pistol drawn. Who had his pistol aimed at me or Mr. Fowler. It was so near a line I could not tell which. I saw the door freed of the men. I stepped toward where Coffin and Fowler were. I saw the jeopardy Mr. Fowler was in and I carred my hand over Mr. Fowler's left shoulder toward Coffin. Mr. Coffin lowered his pistol so as to cover me. I then fell and it was impossible for any man to hit me in th stomach but Mr. Coffin, as I know Mr. Fowler had no pistol. I can not remember whether I cocked my pistol or not. I dropped it when I fell. Whoever picked up my pistol will testify whether my pistol was cocked or not. Mr. Coffin was in the corner of the room at the time he fired, and I fell. It was simultaneous, He was not so close in the corner of himself freely. I heard other shots fired before Coffin's shot. I think four other shots. I judged they must dent, C. J. Currie, Secretary, and the other pistols. I did not see a pistols and of Mr. Cogan. I do Giroux, Sheriff Burns and C. I saw him after he was shot, I saw him as I got up from the floor after I was up and grouping in great weakness. from his mouth. I saw Mr. Wheeler time-a nickel plated ivory-handled pistol-with a look of rage upon his face, as though he would shoot me if I did not get out of the way. I saw no one strike Mr. Balch with a chair. I did not see Mr. Balch have a pistol. I do not remember what Mr. Fowler did when I fell as I was unconscious for a time. Neither do I know what Mr. Coffin did after I fell. I get up, looked around, and found my head partially under the desk. I found I was able to get up and arose and went to the door. "Mr. Wheeler said, "Now you pass out of here." I think Mr. Balch was just ahead of me. I heard Mr. Wheeler make the same remark to him. When Mr. Fowler Moore, Balch and myself went to the office. At the time we had made no arrangement for other men to be there for the purpose of ousting any one. Mr. Cogan was there, as the Company was owing him money.
